

Chihuly: The George R. Stroemple Collection

Donald B. Kuspit

'As Marcel Duchamp said, 'the production of artwork restlessly oscillates among poles: the artist and the spectator', ' writes Donald Kuspit in his insightful essay, 'Chihuly and Stroemple: a Chihuly: The George R. Stroemple Collection gathering of Imaginations'. He means that 'the collector is the appropriate spectator.' For Dale Chihuly, George R. Stroemple, could be the final Chihuly: The George R. Stroemple Collection 'ideal spectator' as he possesses extra works by means of Chihuly than the other collector, targeting 3 sequence in simple terms -- the Irish Cylinders, Macchia, Venetians -- and Drawings. In 1997 the Portland artwork Museum awarded 350 works chosen from this collection. within the catalogue accompanying the exhibition Kuspit explores the connection of artist and collector, noting that 'this exhibition isn't just approximately Dale Chihuly's glass art, but additionally approximately George R Stroemple's enthusiastic, if selective amassing of it.' Curator Kathryn Kanjo addresses the production of those 3 tremendously varied sequence in her incisive essay, 'Chihuly: Glass with no Limits'. Statements via the collector and his curator, Tracy Savage, who had run Chihuly's Seattle studio on the time of Stroemple's first purchases in 1990, supply intimate insights to this dating of collector and artist.
